

Good evening ladies and gentleman. I'm afraid have some good news and some bad news.

There will be no tomorrow.
Tonight, the world will end.

Fear not this final curtain call, as we are all bowing out together.
No one will be left behind...for death cannot exist without the living.
And only the living can experience grief.

Do not fear death, death, ----- Death is nothing at all.

Think not of facing into darkness, but instead of welcoming light!

The tipping point, the pinnacle on which we have balanced has passed. We have peaked at the level where the momentum for change becomes unstoppable.

The ecstasy of anticipation has reached its zenith.

Look towards our apocalypse not as a full stop but Nirvana. No longer do we have to be imprisoned by the idea of progress. These ideas of evolution and revolution have given us a false sense of acceleration when in fact we were always standing still. On this rock in the sky.

Tomorrow is an expiry date. Pluck yourself while you are still ripe. Old fruit makes for rotten sacrifice.

You may ask yourself what form will I take after death? For being free from your own physicality, corporality, you 'can' exist.
Free from the guilt of your role within the real you can 'be', after blood, after bone, after mud and soil.

Exist in the realm of memory. Without a past or present or future. You can re historicise. The person you always wanted to be is the person you were.

stop, erase, rejoice!

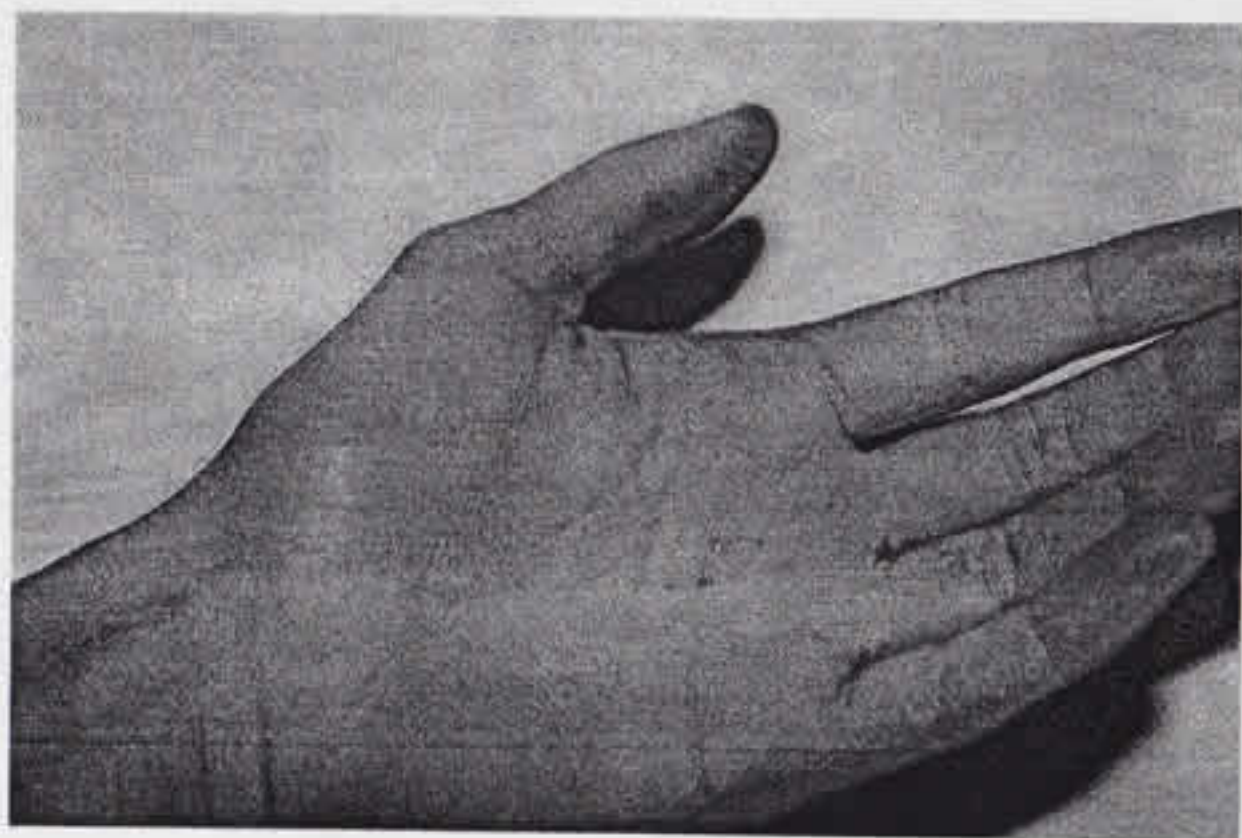

For is this not what we always wanted – To be dancing in the air.

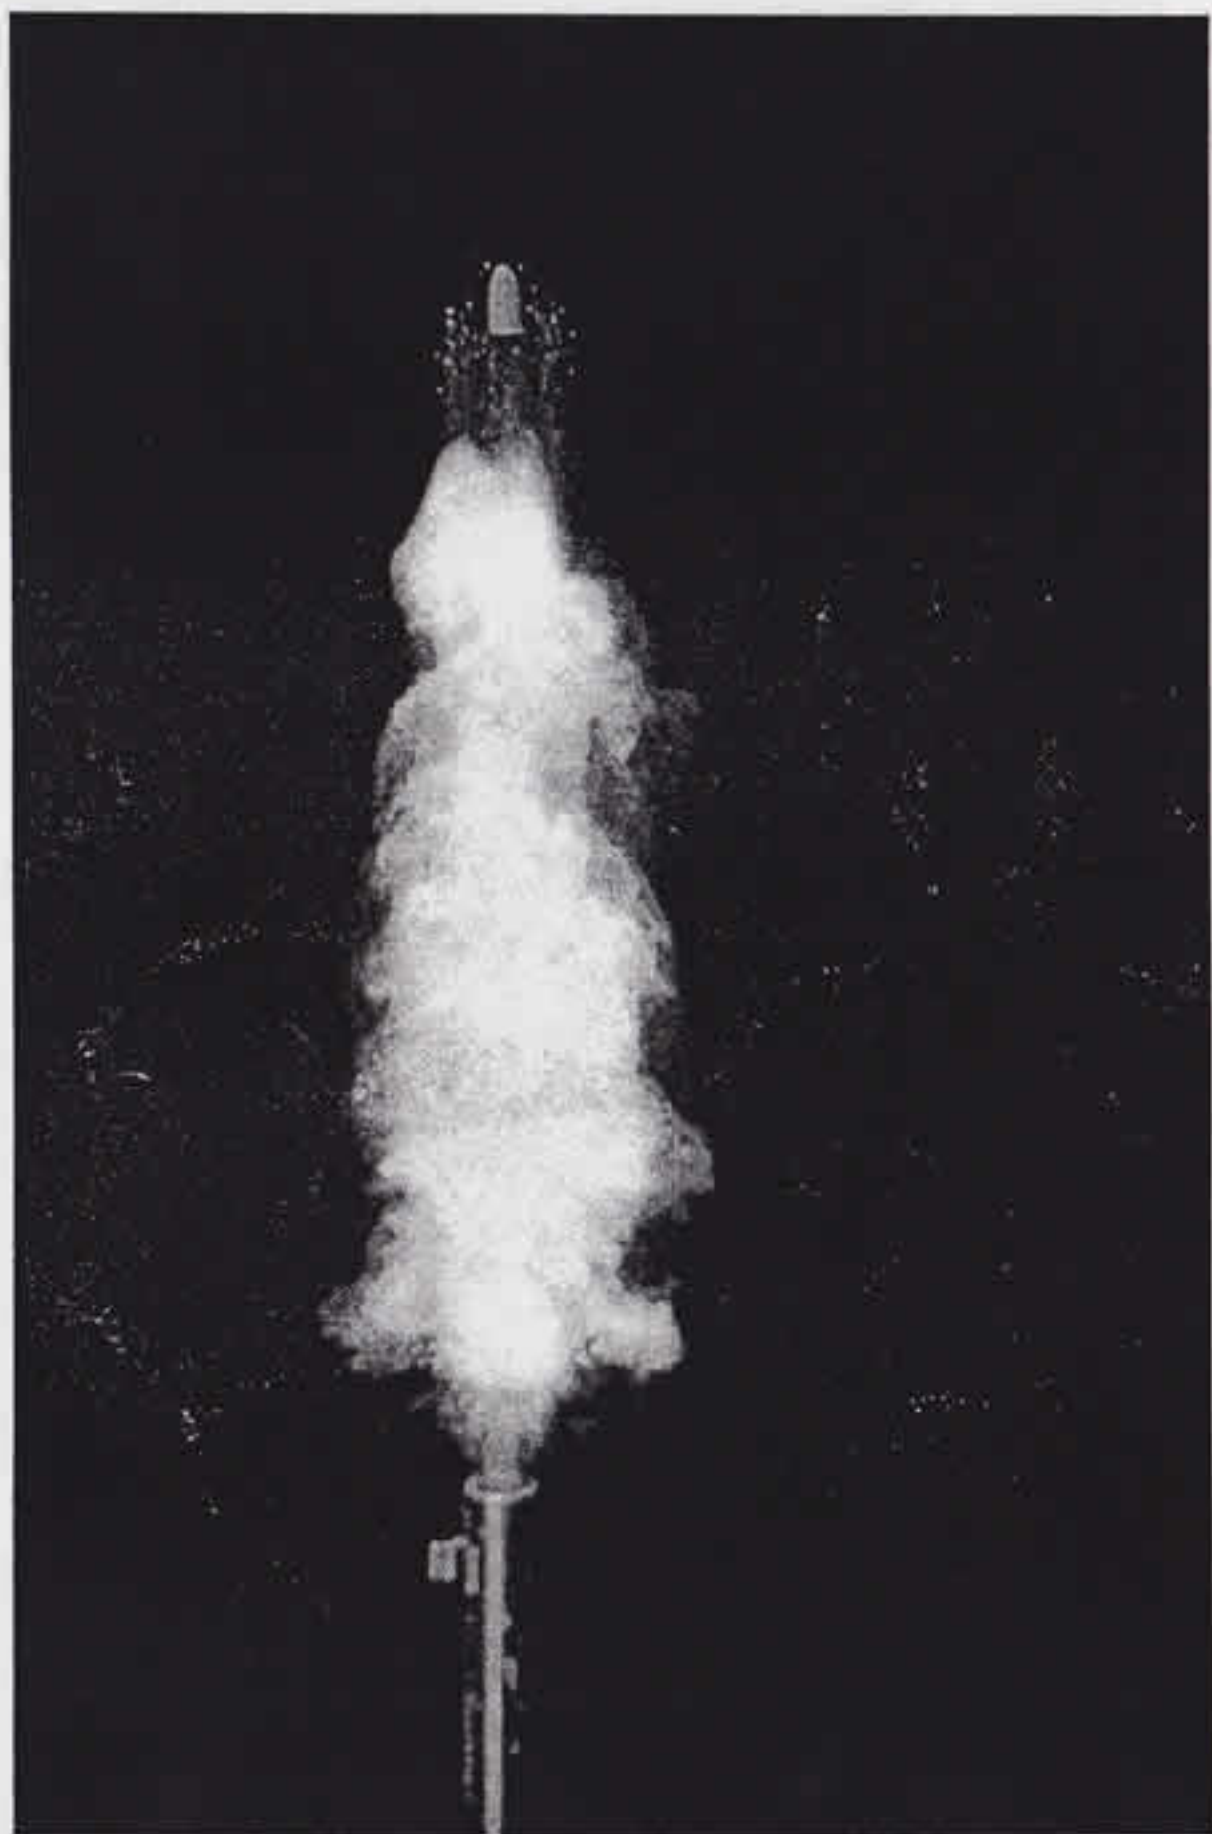

"I do believe, that you are what you perceive. What comes is better than what came before."

02.09.10

TIME CAPSULE

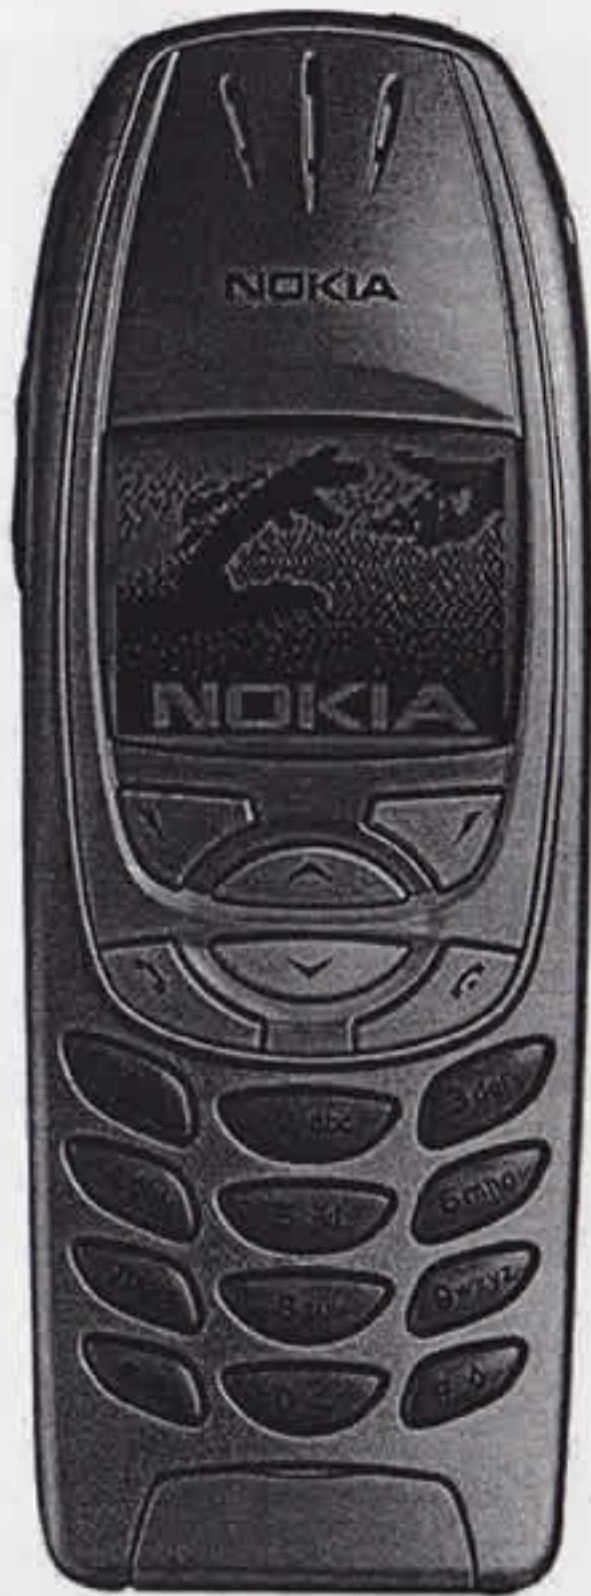

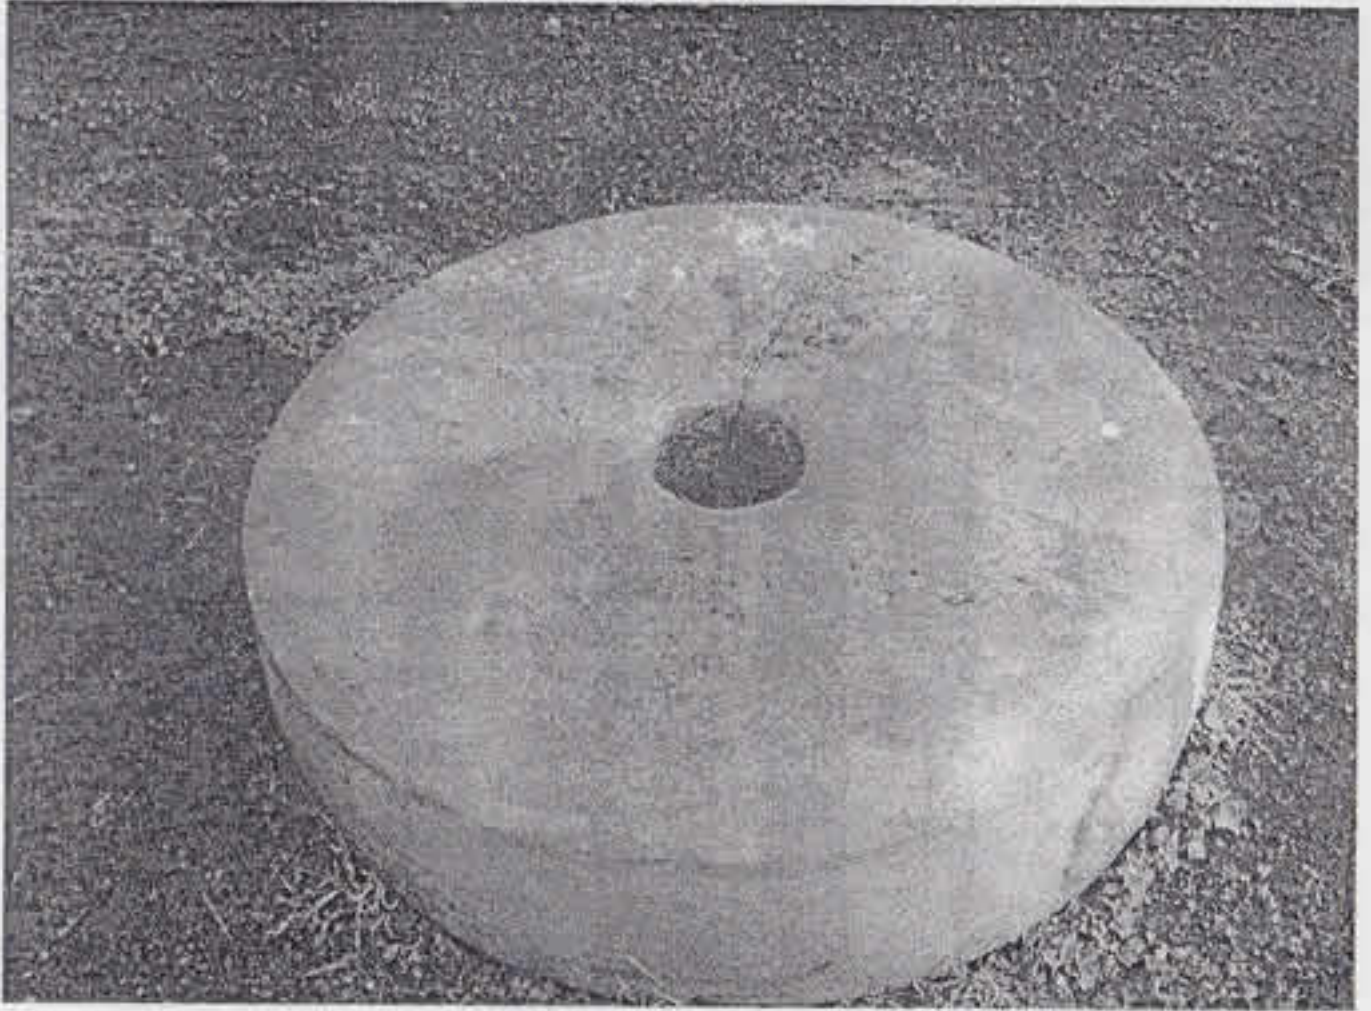

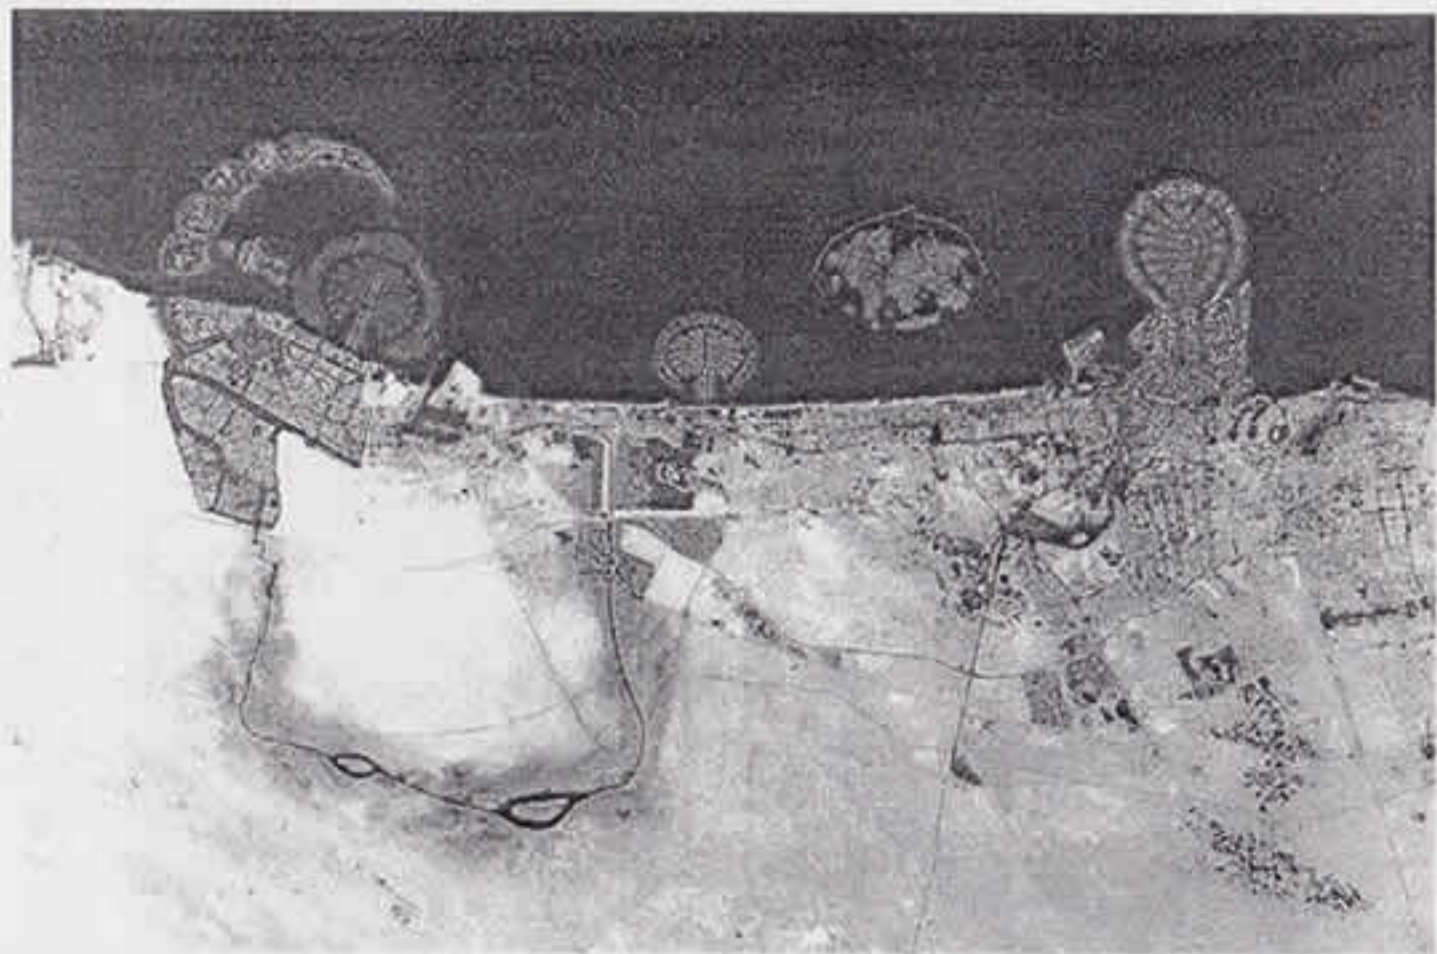

HAHNEMANN

SIMILIA
SIMILIBUS
CURENTUR

VON
JULIUS
VIXI

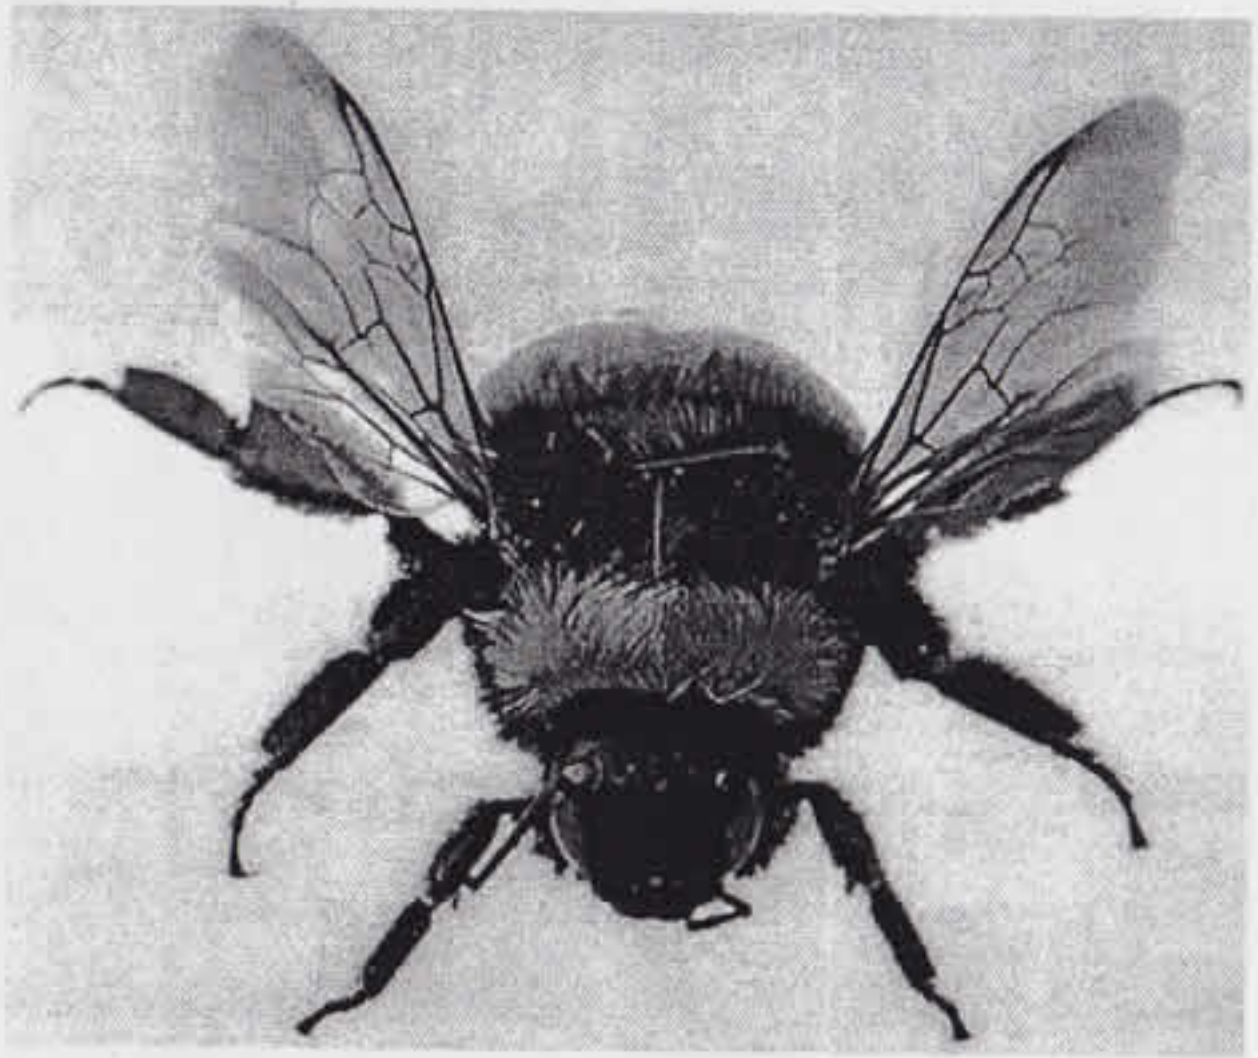

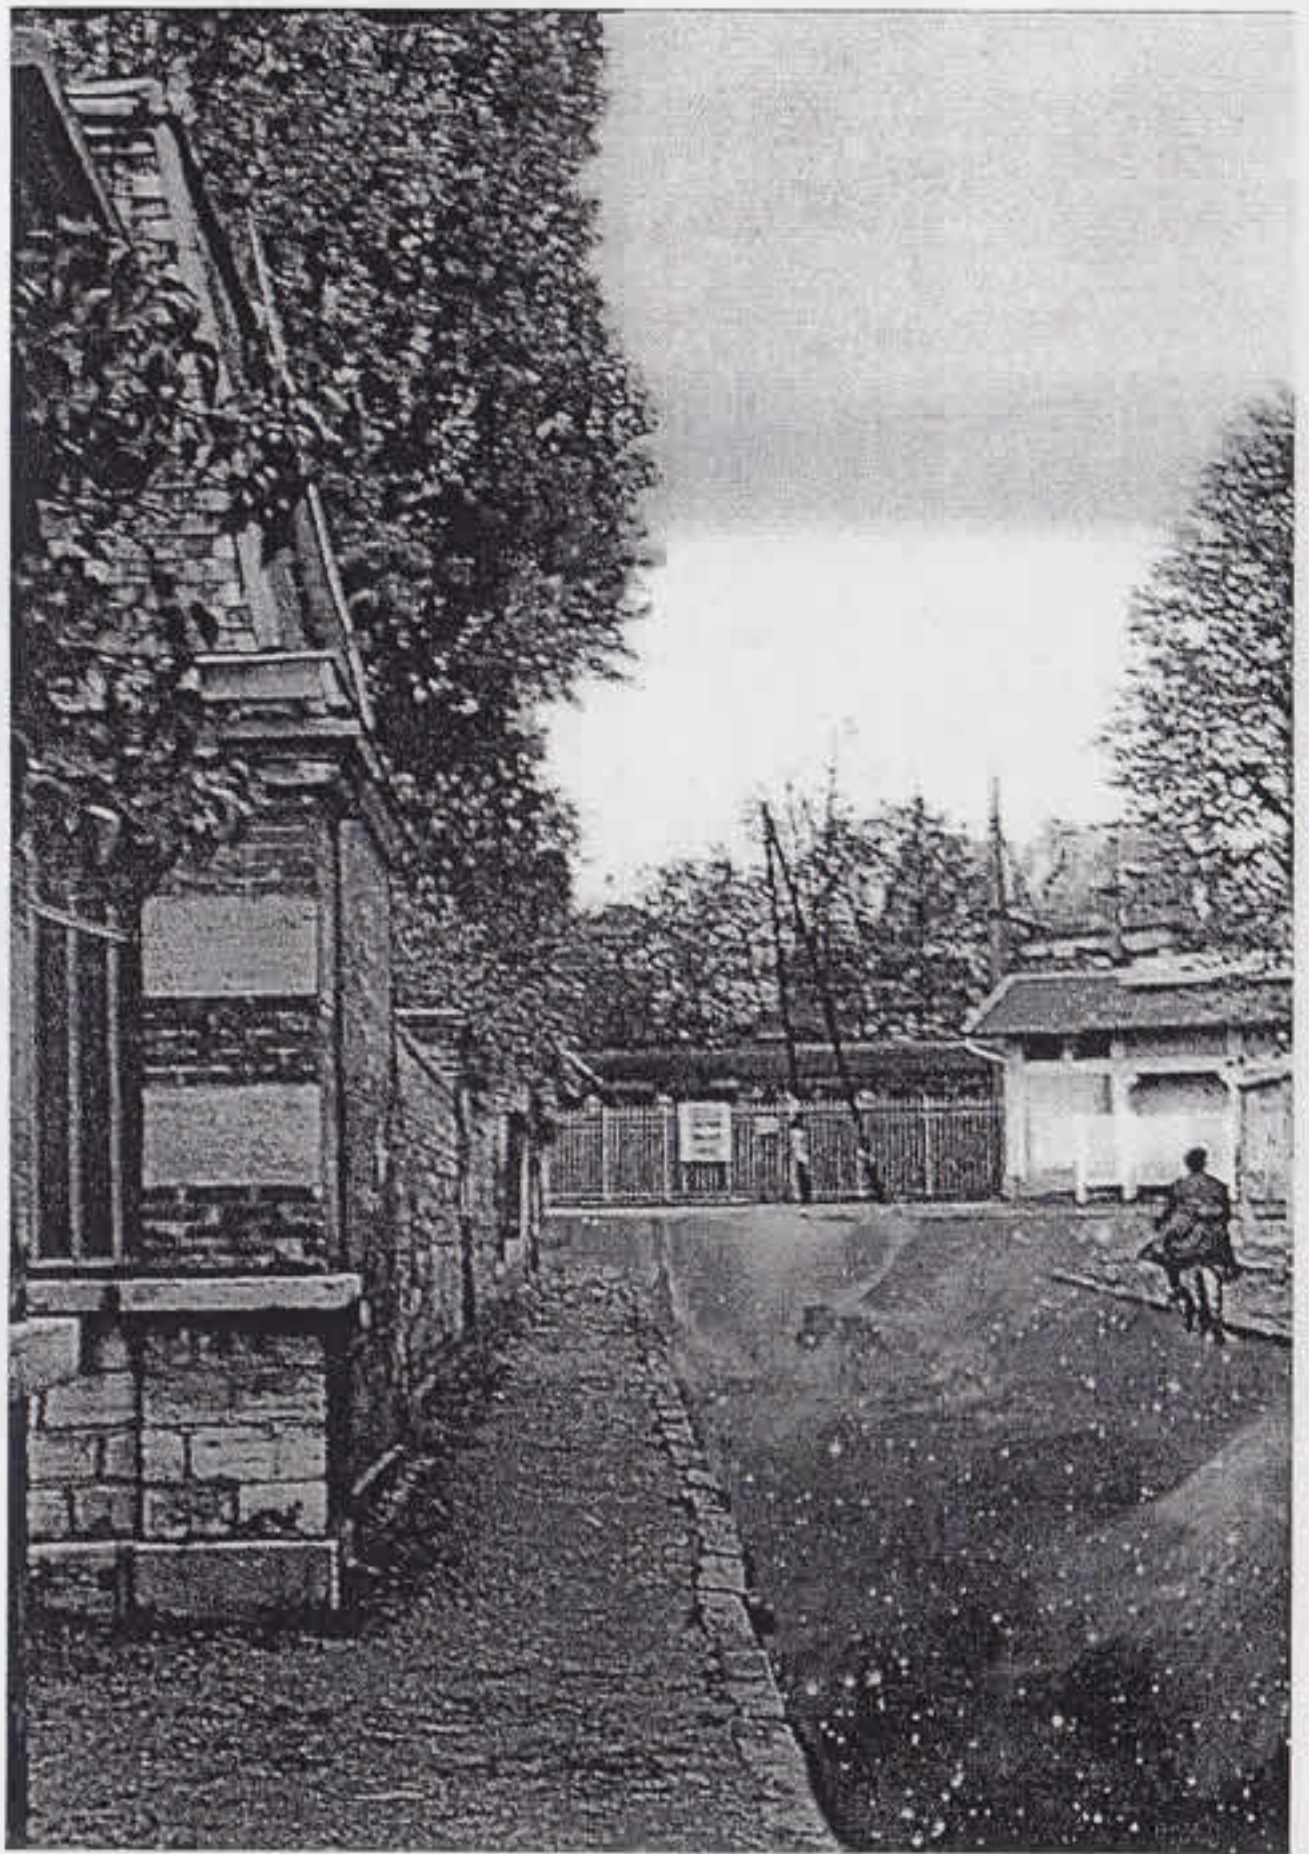

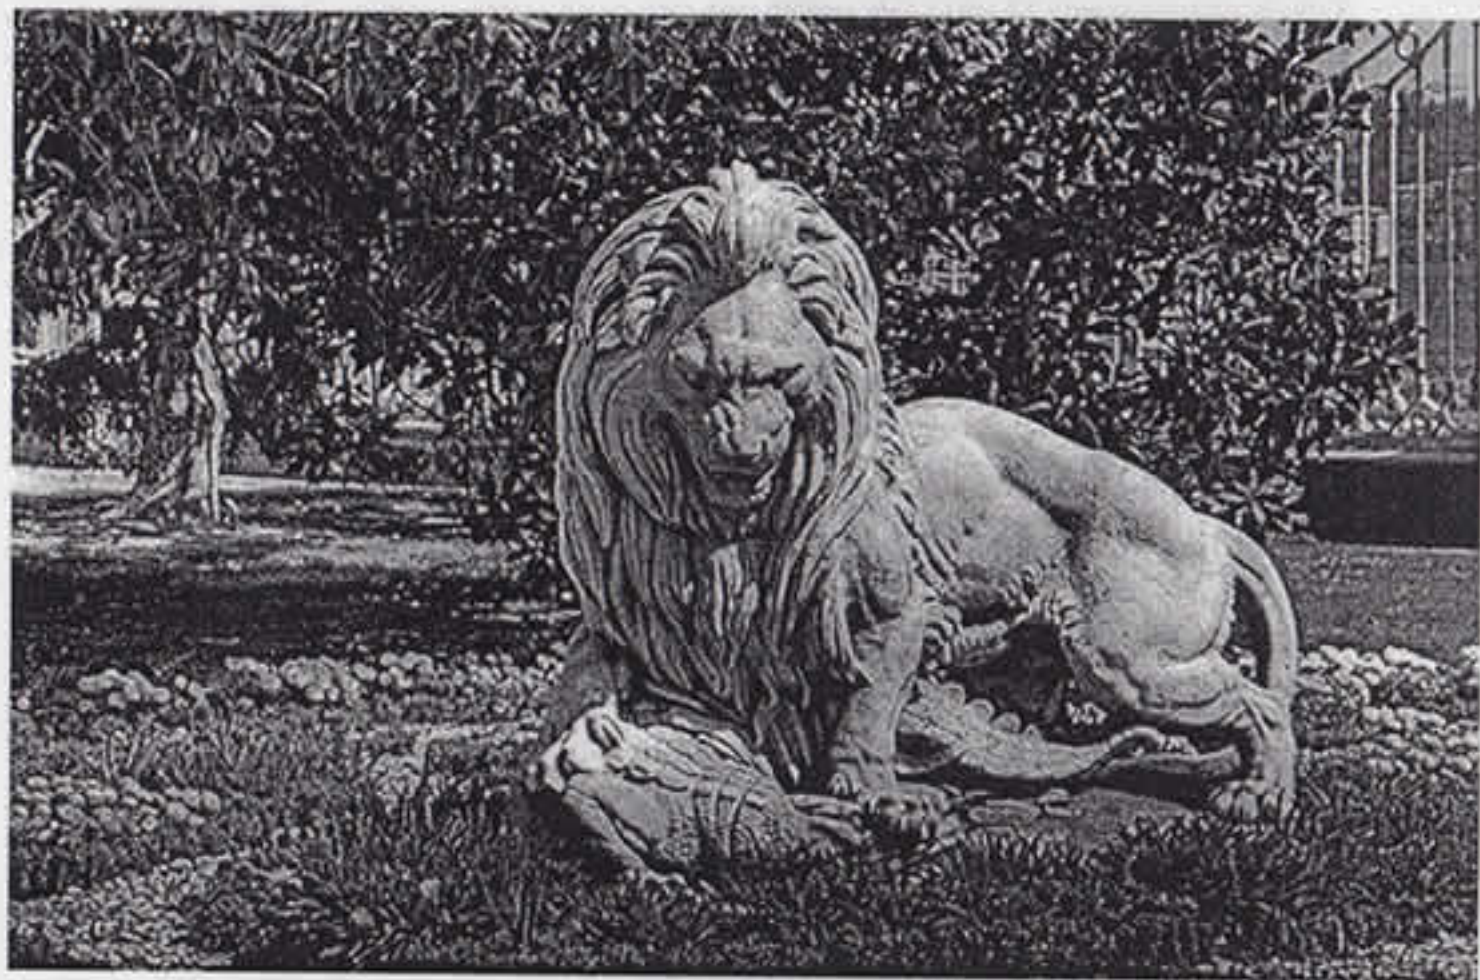

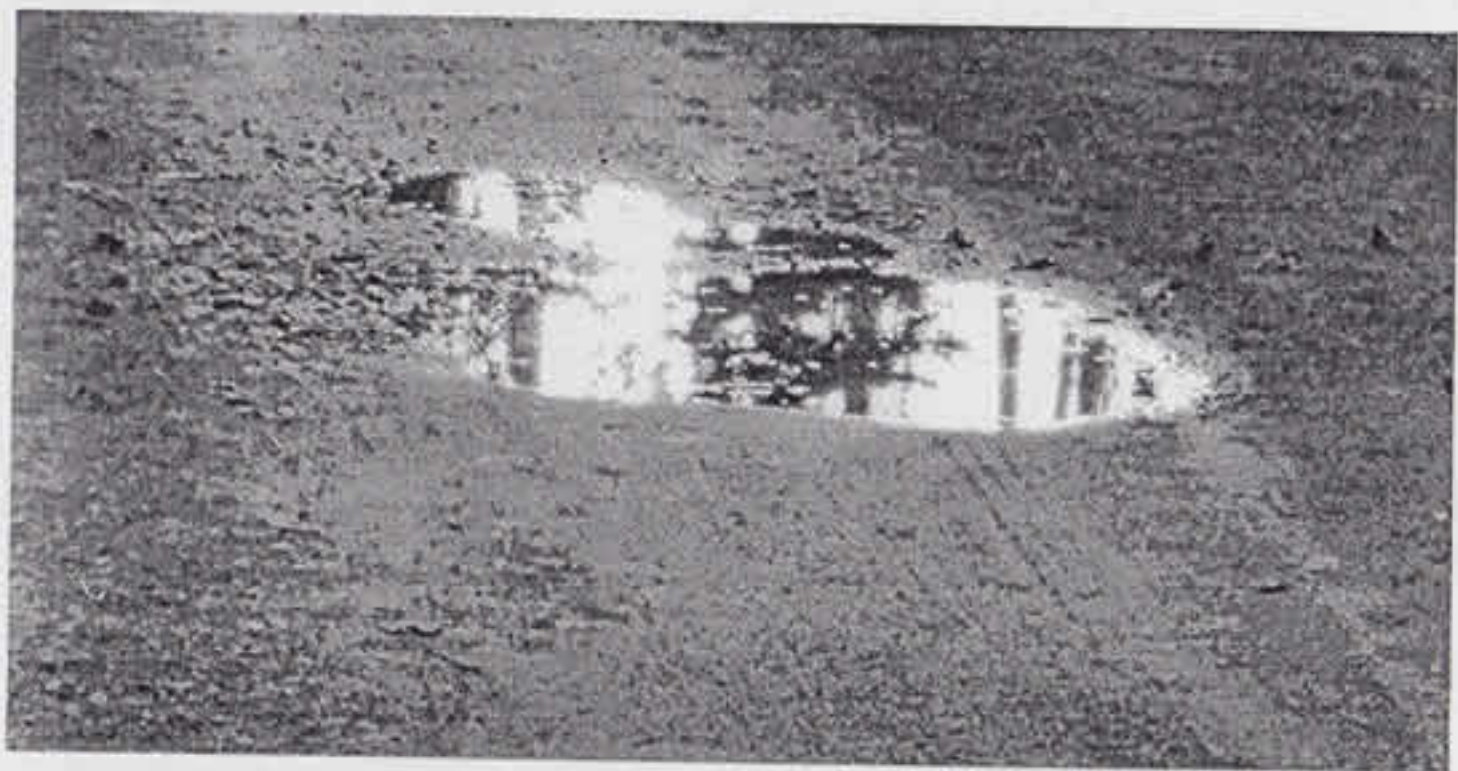

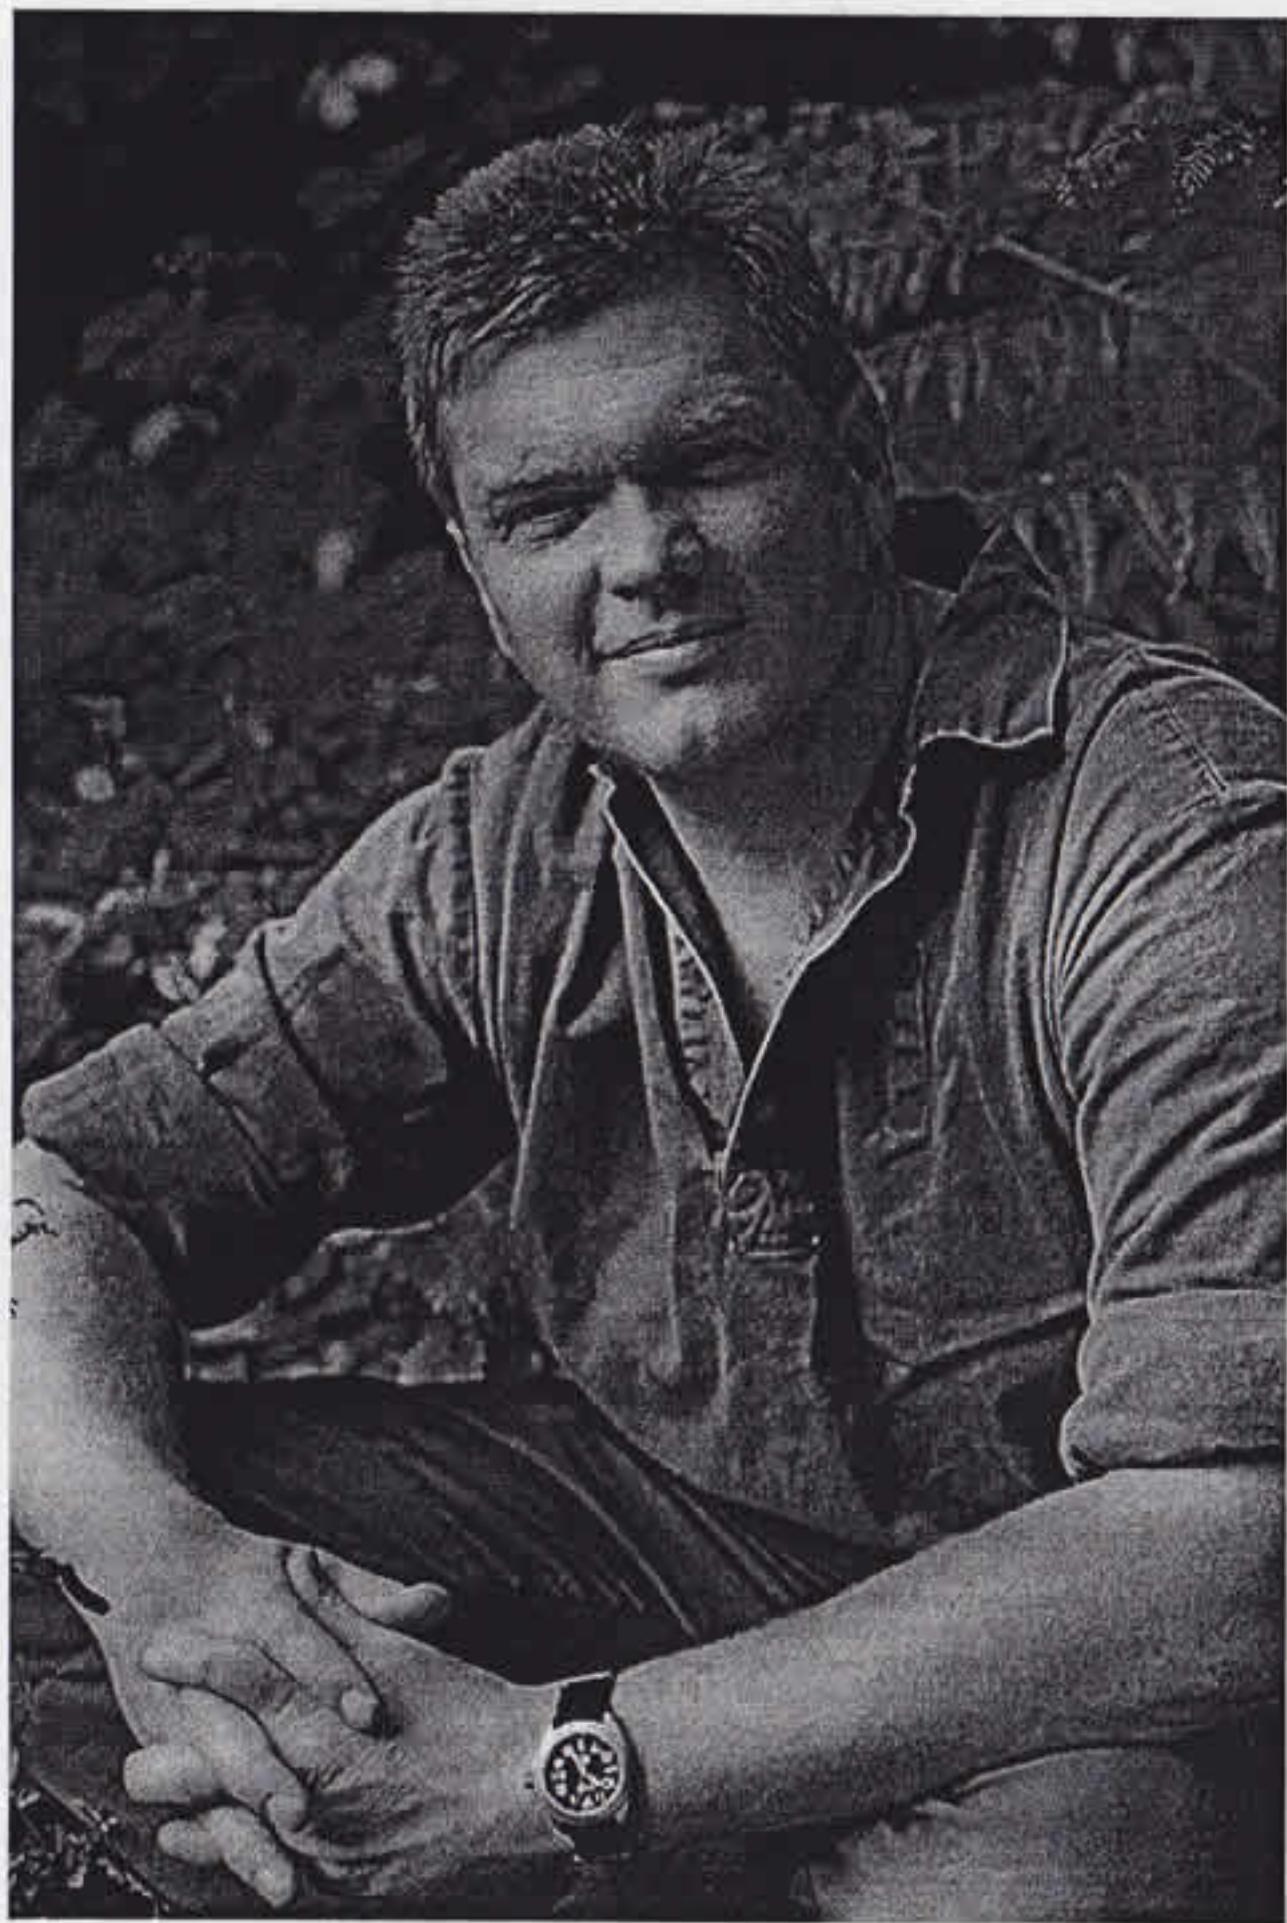

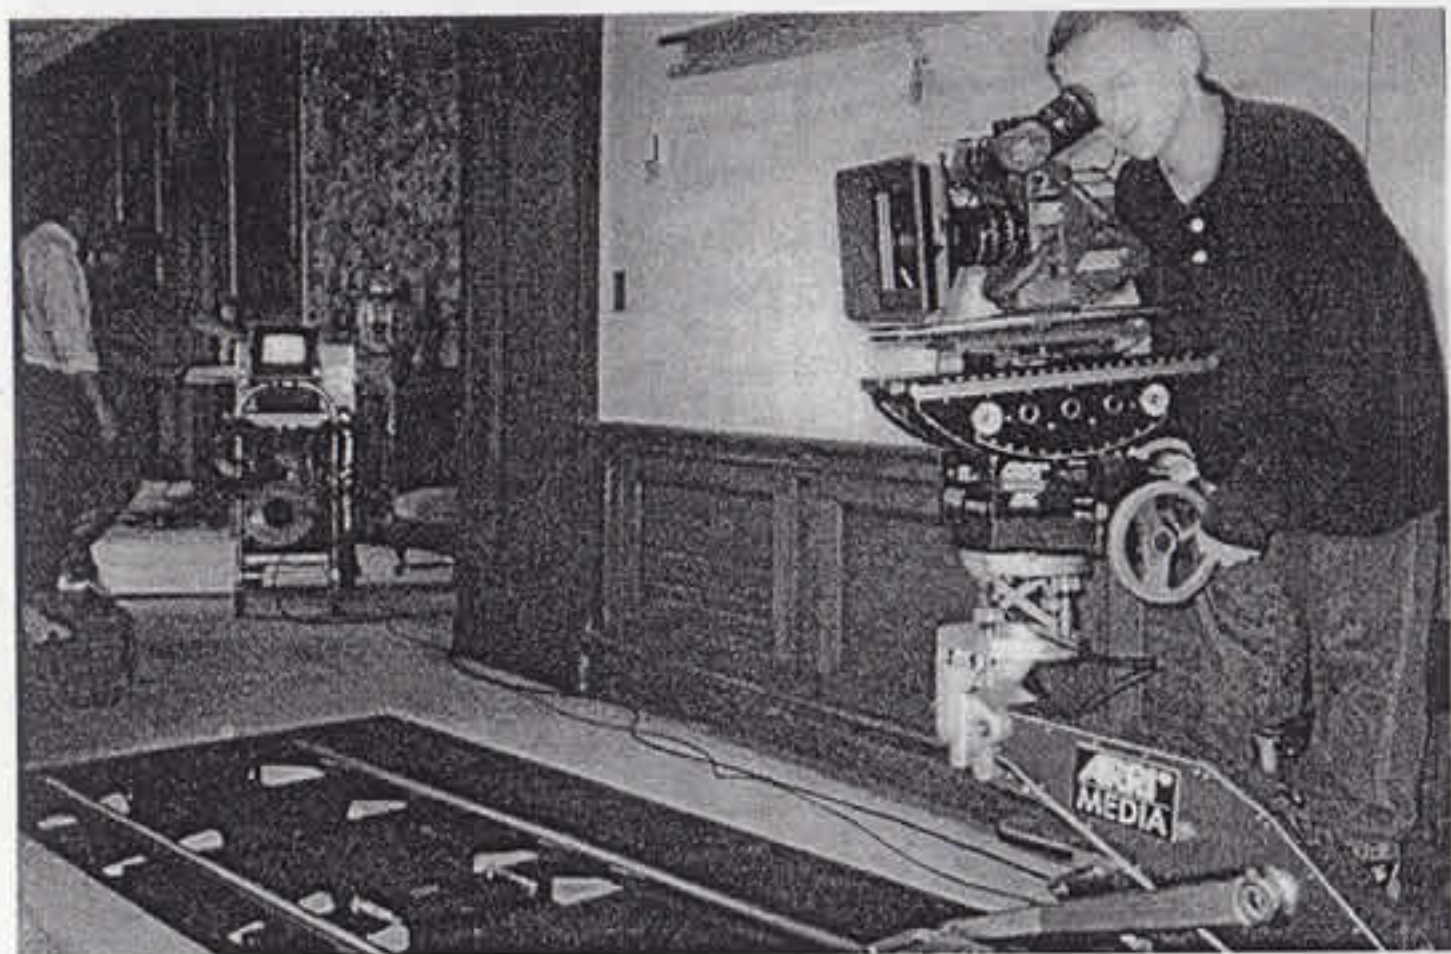

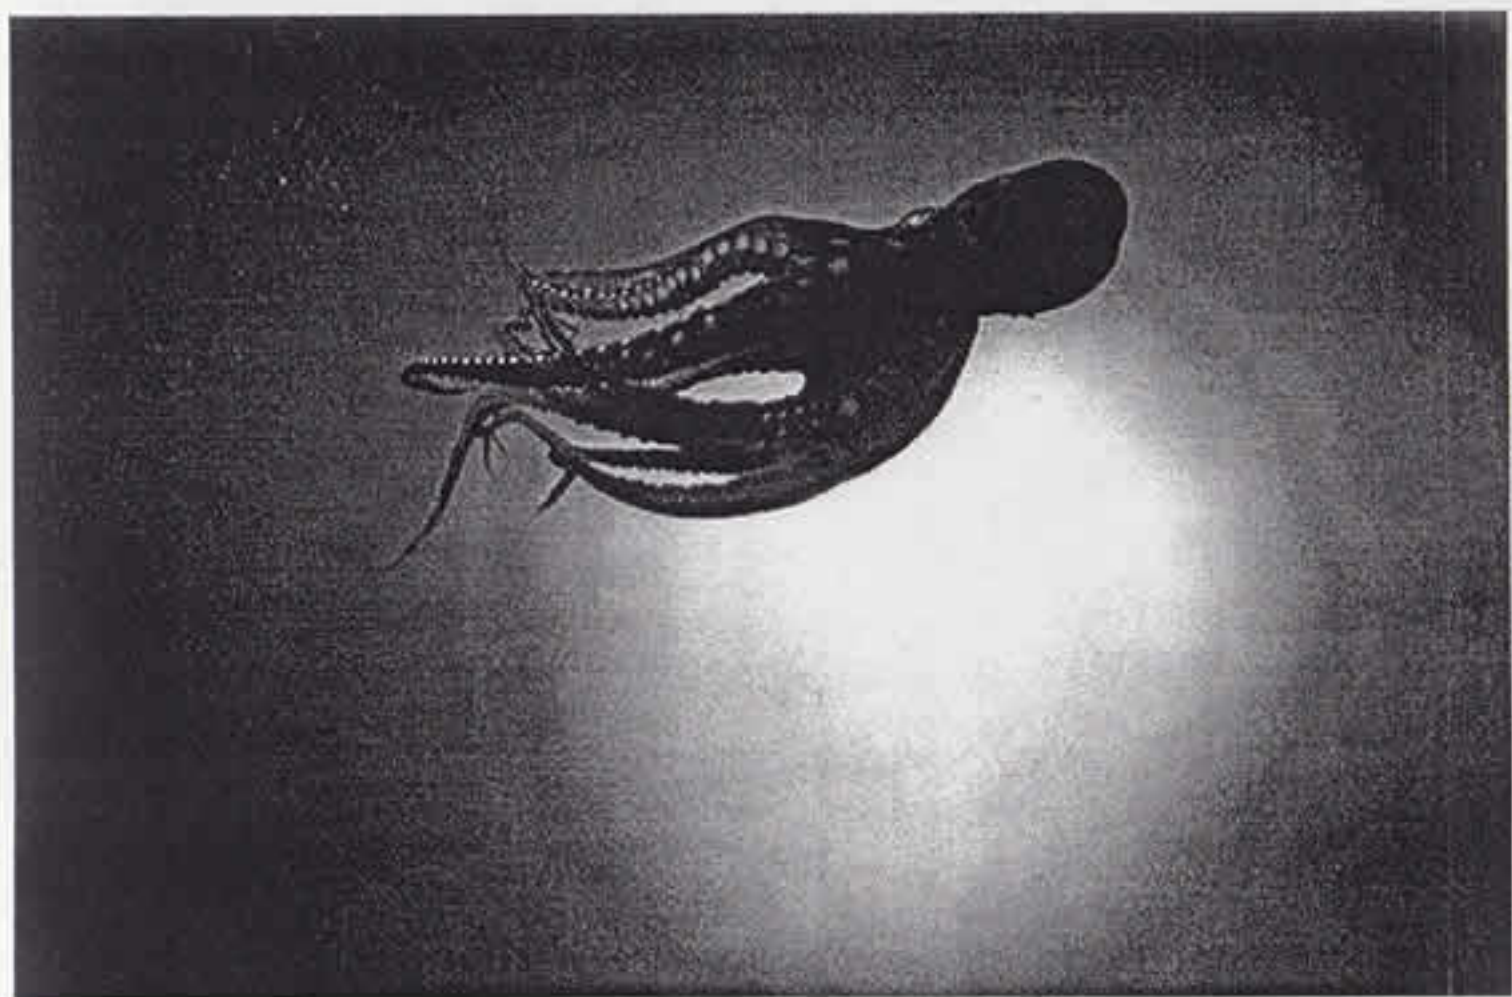

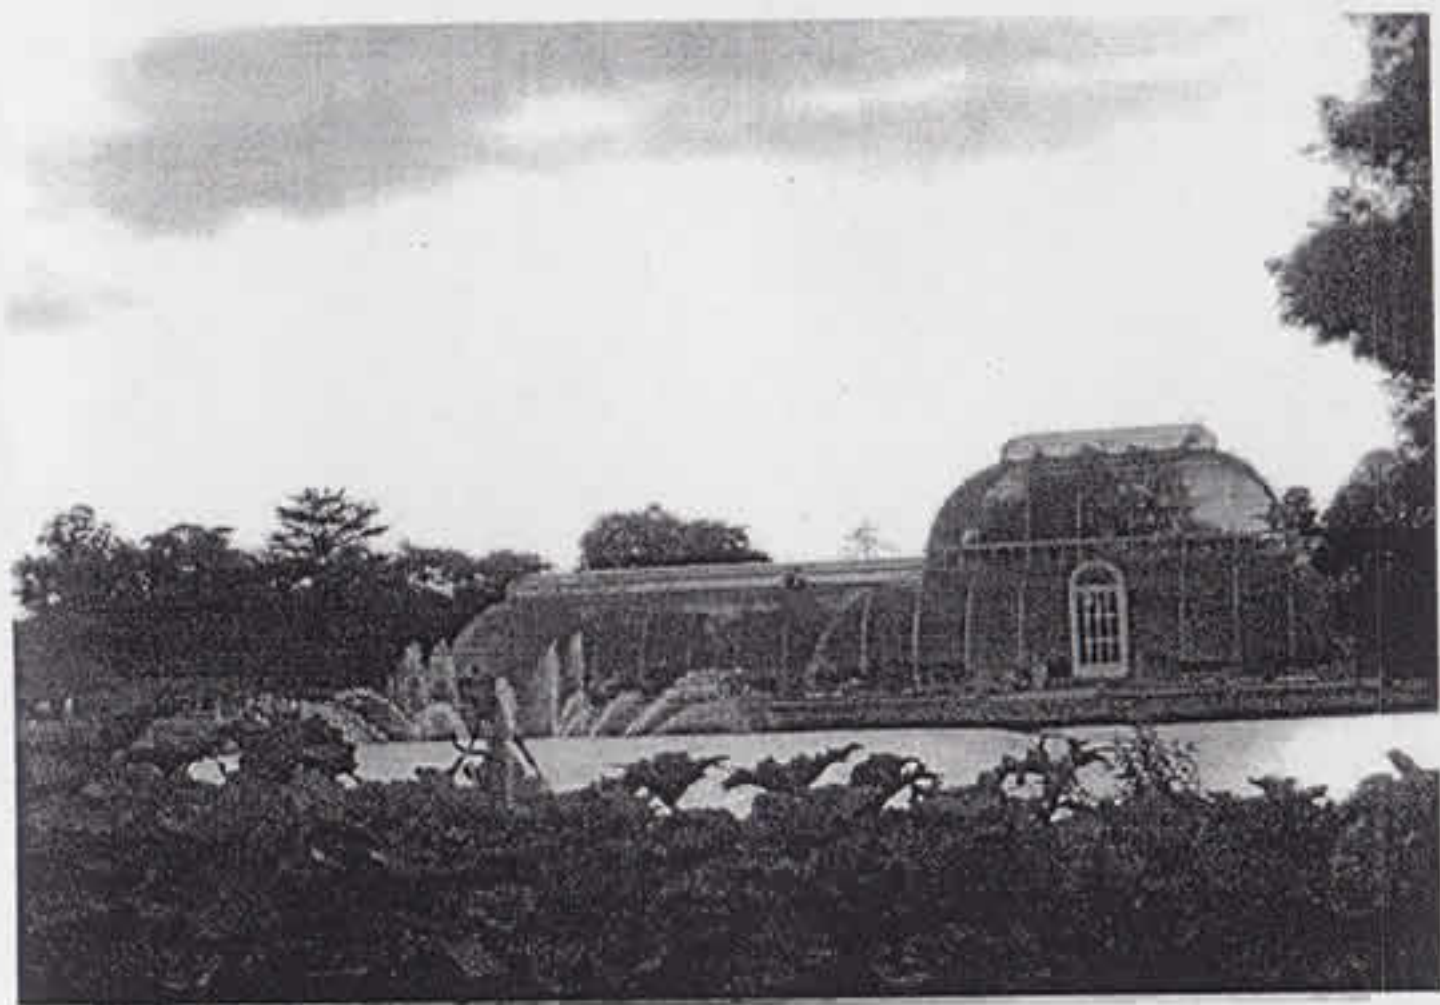

S P A C E C R A F T